Let's do it together CANADA

The National Work Time Reduction Program is designed to support companies across Canada to transition to a shorter work week.

PROGRAM

The Work Time Reduction Center of Excellence understands that moving to a shorter working week is not a one size fits all solution - it will require different models and different approaches for different organizations, different industries, and to meet the specific business needs of different teams and departments. We will work with you to find the most suitable and sustainable pathway for your organization.

HOW TO REGISTER

The National Work Time Reduction Program is open for applications now. You can express your interest by completing this form. If you require further information, please email nationalprogram@worktimereduction.com

Once you have registered to take part in the program, you will receive access to the Smart Workweek course, and an invite to set up an initial discovery and scoping meeting with one of our expert Work Time Reduction specialists.

This is a hybrid program, and participants will work through the majority of the National Work Time Reduction Program in their own time.
